This week everyone complains of the trickiness of March. The newspapers are busily with statistical evidence of the velocity acquired by the wind, which the community in general prefer to reckon by the damage sustained. And the individual pedestrian was eminently fitted to reckon its power whether he was with it or agin' it.

Unfortunately the pastor's wife was detained from meeting with the people on account of illness. The tea was presided over by Mrs. Frank Hinckle and Miss G. A. Oakes. The flowers used to enhance the flavor of chocolate, tea and wafers were made myself and daughter. Mrs. Harris H. Ulmer added greatly to the pleasure of the guests by the contribution of a number of brilliantly rendered piano selections. There were also results by Mr. I. W. Jewell which were delivered in creditable style, manifesting talent and ability. A silver offering was in order, thus leaving the circle a trifle richer in specie as well as in the evidence of good fellowship manifested on the occasion.
